

Kim Brooks Memorial Lifelong Learning Award

Kim Brooks worked in the Human Resources department of ArcelorMittal Dofasco where she was a driving force behind their award winning Essential Skills Program.

Kim was a long-time supporter of the Hamilton Literacy Council and the Adult Basic Education Association. She believed that everyone had the right to learn.

We lost this special and valuable woman to cancer in 2006, but she will never be forgotten.

This award is open to anyone 18 years and older, living in the city of Hamilton, or to any agency/business working within Hamilton, who has a long and outstanding commitment to lifelong learning and has been

- involved in lifelong learning as a participant, or
- a driving force of lifelong learning programs in the workplace, or
- the driving force of lifelong learning programs for the public

Lifelong Learning may include, but is not exclusive to, participating in

- personal interest courses or training
- formal education
- upgrading essentials skills in the workplace
- learning opportunities such as historical tours, dance, health programs, arts and crafts, gardening, music etc.
